Pharaohs of Egypt

Today, the kings of ancient Egypt are known as pharaohs. Pharaoh was an ancient Egyptian word meaning "great house." Early Egyptian kings lived in great houses, or palaces. By 2500 B.C. people began using the word pharaoh for the kings themselves.

To the Egyptians the pharaoh was the son of Ra, an important Egyptian god. The Egyptians believed that as a god, the pharaoh had special powers other people did not have. As a result, the pharaoh had total control over Egypt. Whatever he said was done.

The title of pharaoh was inherited, or passed down from a family member. When a pharaoh died, the oldest son usually became the next pharaoh. If a pharaoh had no sons, another relative became the new ruler. Pharaohs were usually men, but not always. A woman named Hatshepsut served for many years as pharaoh. She even wore a false beard just like male pharaohs wore.

For more than 3,000 years, pharaohs ruled over Egypt. When people today think of ancient pharaohs, the name Tutankhamun often comes to mind. Tutankhamun became pharaoh when he was only nine years old. He ruled as pharaoh from about 1332 B.C. to 1323 B.C., when he died.

Tutankhamun, or King Tut, is remembered most for his amazing tomb, which was discovered in 1922. Those who first entered the tomb saw gold everywhere. A solid-gold coffin held the pharaoh's body. All around were other beautiful and valuable objects.
